B. 51mm Hole Saw (not included)

C. Power Drill (not included)

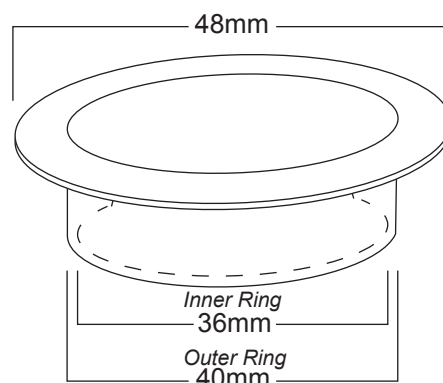

ASSEMBLY

1. Measure and mark the centre of your tabletop for the umbrella hole. Ensure this mark is at the centre of the table and won't interfere with its structure - check there is no support bar directly underneath the hole.
2. Use a hole saw attachment on a power drill to cut through the polywood. Select the appropriate size based on the diameter of your chosen grommet, see above.
Please note: Drill slowly to avoid damaging/melting the tabletop. Ideally have the drill on speed 1 and the torque ring set to 6.
3. After drilling your hole, use sandpaper to smooth the edges of the hole.
4. Insert a grommet into the hole to protect the polywood top from wear and tear. Use super glue to secure the grommet to the table. The grommet will help stabilise the umbrella pole and give the table a neat, finished look.

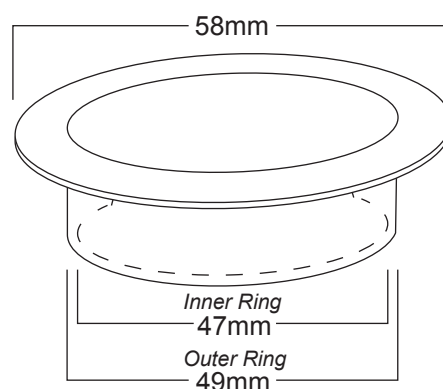

Please Note:

As shown in the diagram, the 40mm & 50mm umbrella holes grommet refer to the outer ring diameter. This means the hole saw for the drill has to be at least 1mm larger (41mm or 51mm) for the grommet to fit inside the table and the umbrella has to fit within the inner ring diameter (37mm or 47mm).
